How I Cured Sweeny And Fistula.

"I want to tell you how I saved one of our horses that had fistula. We had the horse doctor out and he said it was so bad that he did not think he could cure it, and it did not come again. Then we tried Sloan's Liniment and it cured it up nicely."

"One day last spring I was plowing for a neighbor who had a horse which was sweet and I told him about Sloan's Liniment and he had me get a bottle for him, and it cured his horse all right, and he goes off now like a colt."

"We had a horse that had sweeny awfully bad and we thought it was never going to be any good, but we used Sloan's Liniment and it cured it up nicely. I told another neighbor about it and he said it was the best Liniment he ever used."

the silver stemmed trees a sheltering in shade beneath whose boughs many birds sing.

Suddenly the hot humiliation of it overwhelmed her, and she covered her face with her hands, standing almost awaying, as wave on wave of irreducible shame seemed to sweep her from knout to brow. This phase passed after while. Out of it she emerged, more outwardly composed, into another phase, in full self possession once more, able to understand what had happened without the disproportion of emotional exaggeration. After all, she was a woman, which makes account ed in a measure for the unrelatable emotion coincident with a cass to which she was unaccustomed. Without looking up at him she found herself saying coolly enough to surprise herself: "I never supposed I was capable of such a thing." She was too embarrassed to say anything to herself except that I feel fearfully humiliated. Don't say anything now. I do not blame you; truly I do not. It was contemptible of me to do it—wearing that ring, and the girl's name on my left hand, not looking at him. I was contemptible!" She slowly raised her eyes, smirking all her courage to face him.

But he only saw in the pink confusion of her lovely face the dawning charm of complete saluting his admiration by his own admission of a fleeting moment of success. And as his face fell, then hardened into brightness, instantly she divined how he rated her and in a flash realized her weapon and her security and that the coming of the moment had been the signal of that transition to the young man who stood so silently considering her. Strange that she should be unmoved by her own accomplishment in such arts, enchanted that he no longer perhaps suspected genuine emotion in the confused sweetness of her first kiss.

"Why do you take it so seriously?" she said, laughing and studying him, certain now of herself in this new disguise.

"You take it lightly?" he asked, striveling to smile.

"As I must, you know. You don't expect to marry me, do you, Mr. Seward?"

"I'm shocked up at that grimly for awhile."

Walking slowly forward together she fell into step beside him, near him—too near. "Try to be sensible," he said, "you're not like you so much, and it would be horrid if you made me uproot you. And, besides, even if I cared for you there are reasons, you know—reasons for any girl to marry the man I am going to marry. So you see, I could not marry you."

Toward sunset their guides halted them, standing high among the rocks, a silhouette against the sky. And beyond them they saw the poles crowded with the huge nests of the fishhawks, marking the last rendezvous at Osprey Lodge.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE time passed swiftly, day after day, echoing with the steadily fusilade from march to covert, from valley to ridge. Lord Alderden, good enough on ankle and cock, was driven almost frantic by the intense group of nerves. He did better for a day or two and then lost the knack; Marion Page attended to business in her cool and thorough style, and her average on the gun room books was excellent and was also adorned with clever pen and ink sketches.

Loyd Mortimer had given up shooting and established himself as a haunter of cushions in sunny corners. Tom O'Leary had gone back to Lenox; Mrs. Vendenning, to Hot Springs. Beverly...

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness—means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. For the heart, like every other muscle in the body, actually diseased. It is almost always a self, actual disease. The heart is the most important organ in the body, and it is the cause of all this painful palpitation and heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this weak and wading nerve center. It builds up, strengthens, and gives power, more stability, more control, more power, more strength. More control, more power, more strength. Without that the heart must continue to beat, and it will do so until it fails. Then there comes a time when the heart fails, and then death follows.

Presently they spoke of other matters—men interesting to pretty women with much to do in the big city winter between New York, Hot Springs and Florida—surmises as to dinners, dances, and the newswomen in the younger set, and the various changes to be arranged or disarranged, and in some humanitism is heir to, and the attitude of the bishop toward divorce.

Then at last as the big motor car swung in a circle at Wrenston Crossroads and poked its brash and laquer nose toward Shoptover the talk swing back to Seward once more, having tramped half the world over to him.

"He is the sweetest fellow with his mother," sighed Grace, "and that counts heavily with me. But there's trouble ahead for her—sorrow and trouble enough for them both if he is a true Seward."

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

which give you such exquisite suffering, every month, are caused, as you know, by female trouble. Relief seldom or never comes of itself. It is necessary to cure the cause, in order to stop the pains, and this can only be done if you will take a specific, female remedy, that acts directly on the womanly organs.

Upon this, Howard is too materially important to be cut off on the impulse of the moment."

"You are too clever not to. Consider the matter wisely, dispassionately. Intelligent, dear, that if by April you simply can't stand it, take the thing over with me again," she ended rather vaguely, "but for the present, if he had been her brother's desire to wed, Sylvia's beauty and Quarrier's fortune."

"Do you believe I could induce him to wear his hair any way except pompadour?" said Sylvia. "And, dear, his beard is so dreadfully silky. I don't think anything would suit him for it?"

"Only one case, I'm afraid. A very long, thick, soft eyelash of his are ominous. Eyes of that sort rule a man for my taste. He might just as reasonably wear my hat."

"But he can't follow the fashions in his hair, and in his beard, too. This is the sort of man it is simple to hold to sit here and say such things. I am cold blooded enough as it is, material enough, mean, covetous, contemptible."

"Only," said Grace Ferrall mildly,

"you are not choosing a husband; you are choosing a career."

"Indeed? Do you wish me to marry him?"

"What is the alternative, dear?"

"Why, nothing—self respect, dowdiness and peace."

"Is that all?"

"All I can think of."

"Not Stephen Seward?"

"To marry? No. To employ? Yes.

Grace, I have had such a good time with him. You don't know! He is such a boy sometimes, and I—I believe that I am rather good for him. Not that he is a bad boy, but he does not fit that sort of thing. Besides, his enthusiasm is quenched. Now I am the sort he supposed. Now he's found out he will be nice. It's been days since I've had a talk with him. He tried to, but I wouldn't. Besides, the major has said something about him that when Howard is present, nothing but hints, smiling silences, immediate fits of the verger of mirth rather than, and I had nothing definite to refute. I could not even appear to understand or notice, it was all done in such a horridly vague way. But it only made him worse. I don't know that address he took to the trousers is better company than he finds in nine places out of ten among his own sort."

"Oh," said Grace Ferrall slowly, "if that is the way you feel I don't see why you shouldn't play with Mr. Seward when you want to."

"Nor I. I've been a perfect fool not to. Howard hates him."

"How do you know?"

"What a question! A woman knows such things. Then you remember that caricature, that dreadful like Howard. He doesn't have sense of humor. He detests such things. It was the most dreadful thing that Mr. Seward could have done to him."

"Meddled again!" groaned Grace.

"Doesn't Howard know that I did that?"

"But nothing, I can say after his conviction that the license was intended. You know it was a likeness. And if Mr. Seward had not told me that it was not intended I should never have believed it to be an accident."

After a prolonged silence, Sylvia said again:

"It's the first time for him. He finds women only too willing to play with him, as a rule, and he doesn't have to be definite. I wonder what he meant by being so definite with me."

"I suppose he meant marriage," said Sylvia serenely, yet there was the slightest ring in her voice, and it unnerved Mrs. Ferrall to try her a little further.

"Oh, you think I really intended to come?"

"Why not?" retorted Sylvia, turning red. "Do you think he made me over-willing, as you say he finds others?"

"You were probably a new acquisition for him," inferred Mrs. Ferrall musically.

"You mustn't take her seriously, of course," he said, with his record.

Besides, he has the same facility with girls that he has with everything else he tries; his pen—no, you know how infamously clever he is, and he can make good verse and write witty jingles and can carry home with him any open book. It doesn't seem to him that paper barriers are anything but thin film amusing he is clever with—dogs, horses, pen, brush, music, women."

That was too malicious, for Sylvia had flushed up painfully, and Grace Ferrall dropped her gloved hand on the shoulder of the girl beside her. "Child, child," she said, "she is not that sort. No decent man ever is unless the girl is too."

Sylvia, sitting up very straight in her chair, said, "He found me anything but difficult, if that's what you mean."

"Please don't be vexed, dear. I plague myself with what I see—an opening. There's really nothing that worries me about it all."

"What is that?" asked Sylvia, with out interest.

"It's that you might be tempted to care a little for me, which, being used to me, I am—tempted."

"Not seriously."

"Not seriously?"

"She turned in a sudden nervous impatience foreign to her. "Howard Quarrier is too perfect for me, I'm glad to say," she said.

The things he knows about, and doesn't know have been a revelation in this last week with him. There is too much surface, too much exterior adorably fashioned, and inside is all clockwork."

Then low, whispering him of the motor car, she said the silence that produced considerable effect upon Grace Ferrall, and, after mastering her wife, she said in a subdued voice:

"Of course it's my meddling."

"Of course it isn't. I asked your opinion, but I knew what I was going to do. Only I did think him personally somewhat, which made the expediency, the mercenary view of it, easier to contemplate."

As the moments later Sylvia, glancing over her shoulder, noticed that a fine mist drizzled had clouded the case-mates. That meant that her usual evening stroll on the cliffs with Quarrier before dressing for dinner was off. And she drew a little breath of unconscious relief, and Marion Page went in, her light wooden shooting jacket at her hip, shoes and barrels of the gunroom.

ABOUT MEN WHO ARE DOING THINGS.

Chas. May, Foster Heyer and Sam Clegg are busy getting ready for the Knights of Pythias banquet, to be given tomorrow night at Oelze's Hall.

P. D. Plank, Master Mechanic of the Henderson Rock & Coal, always did and has done during the winter giving money to church subscriptions and seeing that ministers are paid in full when it comes to his part. Just recently he has been giving $100.00 to the Methodist parsonage and it was a complete surprise to the Rev. Currie.

Fred May is enjoying the cash system in the meat market.

Chas. B. Skillman has been receiving the quarterly collections from the Methodist church members during W. H. Bowmer's absence.

Judge Wills is able to be out in town after fighting attacks of grip for several weeks.

There is probably not a man in town who enjoys flowers as much as Chas. Furrow. He rarely sees one unless he notices it in every particular and he has flowers growing at his home the year round.

Carl Lishen has not been in the meat business long, but he comes by the business naturally, having always handled the butcher's knife ever since he was large enough to walk. He is having a fair trade at his shop in the West End.

La. H. Severs is now being called "Mud Severs" having recently been given that name by his young friend, Eddany C. Neve.

Ever last week that John A. Ross is a fine engineer, a general farmer and a good business man, but it isn't every one who has learned of his ability as a blacksmith. He can turn a kettle and a hamper, a rocking chair that he made himself. It is of ash wood and misspent. The bottom always lies flat and the top always turns up. The person who likes to use it says he makes one every year. Whether a gift to a friend or relative, Mr. Ross has a convenient little blacksmith shop in his back yard.

John Morgan, of Harlinsburg, says he would like to be County Clerk once in his life, and he isn't very old, prosie is anxious for him.

O'Connell, like other men, is finding out that advertising is the way to sell groceries, dry goods and anything else.

Wednesday of last week L. McGavock, who for several years has been traveling sales, from Evansville to Bay City and Louisville, resigned his position with them to represent Otter & Company, wholesale grocers of the same city. The change will not mean a great deal to him, as he will have the same earning and getting home once a week. Mr. McGavock is one of the few men on the road who has the advantage of getting home so often.

Dr. Forrest Lightfoot is a lover of fine stationers and the kind he uses carries out his good taste of colors and design. His letter heads and envelopes are of hand-woven linen paper in gray blue and white in blue ink, the type being Old English. The influence of good stationery is most extensive and its force is being recognized by leading business men everywhere.

Competition is the cutting of prices in Irvington and Dick Hardaway has his nerve when it comes to selling tulip. One store in that city commenced selling Kis-Me gum, two bunches for five cents.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by institutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed it may run across the ear and perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the infection is removed and the tube restored to a normal condition, hearing can be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammatory condition of the mucous surfaces.

We highly recommend Dr. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, for the cure of deafness caused by Catarrh.

cents, then another made three for five; now Hardaway is selling five bunches of fresh Kis-Me gum for one nickel. Gum fiends, even some of Cloverport, are giving Mr. Hardaway the rush.

In addition to his meat market M. Winn has gone to the wholesale produce business as is announced in his ad in the news.

Theodore Shapinsky was in Louisville Sunday and while there was given a splendid offer by D. Christill & Co., of Evansville, Ind. Mr. Christill has agreed to represent his house as traveling salesmen and Mr. Shapinsky will probably accept the situation. He is now having an auction sale of his

CUSTER.

George Lucas' meat house was destroyed by fire sometime during Friday night. Except saving four sides of meat everything was entirely lost. There was no insurance on the house. The fire was caused by a piece of meat falling into a kettle of hot coal left in the house in smoking the meat, it blazing and setting the house on fire. Mr. Lucas had slaughtered seven hogs for his years meat, this with other provisions stored away for the family use and all of the lad was burned.

Mrs. A. H. Taylor is still confined to her bed with the grippe.

Mr. A. B. Suter is convalescing. Sat up a little on Sunday for the first time. Joe Ti. went to Louisville and slipped back home before people knew he had been away from home. Joe has to be seen because people say he is jiving his nuptial bells.

There is another strong democrat at J. T. Mitchell's come to stay. They are considering a name for the little guest.

That egg business was the biggest fraud you ever heard of. But it had believers and disbelievers all the same. For a while things looked like there was room for believing. That insurance agent surely was a slick trick player. Earliest Meador caught up with him though.

MAY WIPE IT OFF THE EARTH.

Simple Home-Made Treatment Said To Overcome Rheumatism.

When an eminent authority announced to the Scranton (Pa.) Times that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, everyday drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to his claims. This was only a few months ago. Today nearly every newspaper in the country, even the metropolitan dailies, are announcing it and the splendid results achieved. It is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Karrow, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are simple ingredients, making an absolute harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter which, if not eradicated, either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache. He who wears pencils in a leather belt, or who wears against his abdomen, New York leather against his diaphragm, use of many patent medicines.

I wish that I might talk with all sick ones about the actual state of Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailments. To explain in person how weak Stomach nerves lead to Stomach weakness, I am sure would interest all. And it is the same with the Heart or West Kidney. This is why my prescription "Take a spoonful of this medicine" reaches ailments of the Stomach, Heart or Kidney. This is why my prescription "Take a spoonful of this medicine" reaches ailments of the Stomach, Heart or Kidney. It is wrong to drink the Stomach or stimulate the Heart or Kidney. These weak inside nerves simply need more strength. My restorative is the only prescription made expressly for the nerves. ## PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY

PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT
IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

BROTHERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903. —

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

—Brother of the Good Shepherd.

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common complaint in Canada for at least one-third of the cases.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna becomes an obstinate disease it is necessary to treat it.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systematic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Having used Peruna for the past few months for outpatients and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, August 20, 1903.

Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna a valuable aid in the obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, and one with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he was for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna removed completely.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns, Province of Quebec, writes:

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how much Peruna had helped us to find Peruna. We recommend it highly for colts, coughs, catarrh and neuritis.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a tea-spoonful three times a day.

Mrs. Eliza Boggs, Dundurn, Sask., N.W.T., Canada, writes:

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am now cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. Peruna is the best medicine for catarrh. I never felt better in my life than I do at present."

Peruna not only promptly relieves colts and colds in their first stages, but is equally good in chronic affections, such as catarrh in the chronic state.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine is required to cure a slight attack of catarrh than is required to relieve the after-illness if it had been allowed to become chronic.

Tom Pate has the lagrige.

Clifton Corley, of Patiesville, visited friends here Sunday.

Mrs. Reuben Flaws and Mrs. Laura Burnett spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. John Corley.

Mrs. Morrison, of Calhoun, dentist, office down river, 28th Street, between Main and Phoenix, Owensboro, Ky.
